The Hall of My Chieftain

Ystfell Cynddylan

English words by Mrs Hemans

This poem is attributed to Heledd, daughter of Cyndrwyn, whose brothers were all killed during the troubles years following the building of King Offa's Dyke, between 757 and 796. Her lament is for her favourite brother, Cynddylan.

Sadly

1. The hall of my chief - tain is emp - ty to - night; I weep, for the room has been robbed of its light: The glow from the lamp in the ceil - ing is o'er, The blaze from the hearth shall say wel - come no more.
