Side Notes: When you play this song, think of your own home and family and focus on good memories. When I play through this, I think of my own mother and all of the sacrifices of time and energy she spent teaching her children. When you have kids of your own, you gain a new appreciation for what your parents went through to raise you and give you opportunities. Luckily, my parents cared enough about me that they wouldn't allow me to stop piano lessons, no matter how much I complained. Even if you don't have the ideal family or home situation, be grateful for what you have and enjoy the time you have to spend with your family.
